The 10 track album, which includes the two singles, is available for worldwide purchase or streaming on all major platforms, such as Spotify, iTunes, Amazon Music and Deezer.

Every Day I Read You Like a Book was described as 'having infectious bounce and charm' and having 'smooth vocals.' You Shoot Another Lullaby was described as having 'indie pop vibes ... and a unique chorus' and having a 'whimsical vocal performance.'

Across the album, the tracks are extremely varied. They include an 80s-style synth pop song, a couple of folky/ballad numbers, an ambient/EDM-esque instrumental track, a song with an unusual time signature and something out of early Pink Floyd. There really is something for everyone.

Brian embarked on writing the new album in April 2017 and completed recording all 10 tracks by the end of October 2019. In a ground-breaking move, Brian has had his music professionally mixed and mastered, and has used a professional video-maker, for the first time, to accompany some of his tracks.

Brian said, “I can’t believe I’ve finally released this album over three years after I started making it. I had wanted to put it out in autumn 2019, but I realised that there was more groundwork to do. I’ve never worked harder on my music than on this album. Every track had to be good enough and I put my heart and soul into making each one as good as it could be. I hope people enjoy it.”

South London based Brian Silk writes and records his music end-to-end – being a songwriter, multi-instrumentalist and singer – using a home studio set-up. He wrote his first song at the age of 10 and started putting out music in his early 20s. He has been the lead singer in a band as well as a solo performer.

Until 2020, Brian only released his music in a very limited way, such as putting tracks on SoundCloud and letting family and friends know. With his single release, Every Day I Read

You Like A Book, Brian embarked on making his music available on all major online platforms.

Brian records at home, using Logic Pro X and various guitars and microphones. He played all the parts and did all the singing. Ahead of recording the album, Brian took six months of singing lessons to try to bring his voice up to scratch.
